Membership Benefits

Anyone interested in the arts is encouraged to join FAAC and, if they wish, to take an active part in our efforts and programs.

For an artist, the FAAC offers networking opportunities with other artists, exposure through our art shows and competitions, teaching opportunities, and website. We encourage our politicians to support legislation that benefits or promotes the arts and artists. FAAC also works with local leaders to develop local and regional opportunities for artists and arts-based businesses. Finally, we also attempt to act as a conduit through which the artist is made aware of opportunities to further their artistic careers.

The non-artist will find many opportunities to participate in or simply enjoy the Council's efforts to present and support the arts. You don't need to be an artist to help further our mission. Assistance is always needed in presenting events, planning educational programs, writing grants, recruiting members, and more.

All members enjoy advanced notice of workshops and events as well as a reduced fee for some events. All members are encouraged to attend the monthly Board meetings, to share their ideas and to provide the Board with feedback that will help us improve our programs and events.

Active membership is encouraged, not required. Consider adding your voice and your skills to FAAC's efforts. FAAC is always looking for new ideas, so share yours! We are also an all volunteer organization and can always use help like marketing, writing, photography and video, social media, communications & publications, event planning, event set-up, and more.
